

AT THE FIELD 12

A part of the Mallards Landing RC demonstration flying was Nick Syracuse's P-51. The full scale crew enjoyed the authority which these war birds tore up the sky. A good number of them remembered the important part of the WWII effort that these planes played. Nick also wowed the crowd with a 3-D demonstration that caused a full scale gasp when he rolled inverted from takeoff.

Ron Hargrove's P-47 rounded out the three plane formations that dominated the Mallards Landing flight pattern Saturday. "Tar Heel Hal" represented the Jug Fans and did the job up in fine shape. It was hard to pick out any one of these fine war birds as being more dominate in performance. They all showed what they are made of.
