

HCRCC - AT THE FLYING FIELD

FEBRUARY 19, 2010

Can you believe it? We actually had a flying day in February. Temperatures are moderating a bit this week and the wind velocity was in the single digits, so out the Geezers came in force and enjoyed a very good flying day. Greeting us at the field was water pressure on the RC Club grounds. Wonderful! Our thanks to the efforts of Mike Lashely working with the Henry County Recreation folks. I'll look for you at the field..... JRM

Ron Hargrove made it out to the flying field this afternoon enjoying the shirt sleeve weather and put on a mini-clinic on WWII War Birds with his smooth flying F-4U Corsair. Ron said that he really had a time during construction keeping all the gull-wing segments in proper alignment. Not satisfied with the designed configuration of the kit, he added segmented flaps (3 each side) that serve well in the landing pattern.

Good work Ron! Always a pleasure to watch you fly your WWII War Birds.

Jim Brooks and Vic Echevarria were making the most of the good flying weather today. Shown here with their streamer trailing sail-planes taking advantage of the moderate temps and the acceptable breeze from the NNW.

Not able to be with us at the flying field was Joe Brett who is in the hospital with a preliminary diagnosis of Gall Stones. Joe is having a bit of a time being patient with the health care schedule and failure to provide him with a firm schedule for his treatment and subsequent release..... Easy now Joe!

One of the new items that greeted us this morning was the arrival of the "Aircraft Carrier Landing Platform". It is as pictured here and is well constructed and sits on four furniture type rollers. Plans are for use of the landing platform with both helicopter and fixed wing aircraft during Fun Fly activities. More information will follow and be available at the February club meeting scheduled for Saturday, February 27. Be there!
